YEAGER AIRPORT UNVEILS JUNCTION PASS

Today, Yeager Airport cut the ribbon on the newly remodeled post-security restaurant and gift shop - The Junction Charleston. The Airport is also introducing an exciting opportunity for guests to visit CRW without having to book a flight. The CRW Junction Pass will allow those not flying to eat and shop at the post security-restaurant and gift shop.

“Most of us can remember a time when you could walk up to the windows here and watch planes land,” said Yeager Airport Director and CEO Nick Keller. “This pass will allow people through security to eat at our brand-new restaurant with an incredible view of the airfield.”

Those interested in obtaining a pass can visit yeagerairport.com/junctionpass/ to apply. To be eligible for a CRW Junction pass, you have to apply for a spot at least 24 hours before coming to the airport. When you are signing up, you have to enter your name, date of birth, and gender exactly as it appears on the government ID you’re going to present at check-in. If approved, you will be subject to the same security screening regulations as passengers boarding a plane.

The sign-in site for the CRW Junction Pass is live now. Check-in for the pass is available daily from 6:00 am to 5:00 pm.
