CAPITAL JET CENTER EMPLOYEE TESTS POSITIVE FOR COVID-19

Yeager Airport was informed today that an employee at Capital Jet Center, the Airport's Fixed Based Operator, has tested positive for COVID-19. The employee was on property one day last week and has not been on property since Monday, February 22nd. The virus was not contracted at the Airport.

Employees at Capital Jet Center have continued to follow all safety protocols such as handwashing and mask-wearing. The employee was not in contact with any customers traveling through Capital Jet Center.

"We are hopeful that the employee has a quick recovery," said Yeager Airport Director & CEO Nick Keller. "This is a reminder that we need to continue following health and safety protocols to keep everyone at the Airport safe."

Yeager Airport was awarded a Health Accreditation earlier this month from Airports Council International (ACI). The accreditation is validation that the Airport has been following industry best practices since the start of the pandemic.
