

YEAGER AIRPORT

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

PRESS RELEASE

DELTA AIR LINES ADDING CRJ-900 SERVICE AT CRW

Delta Air Lines is now flying the larger Bombardier CRJ-900 aircraft at Yeager Airport (CRW). They had previously been flying the smaller CRJ-200s. This larger regional jet includes 76 seats, with additional First class and Delta Comfort+ seating. The 900s will be flown on all flights to and from the Atlanta (ATL) hub and CRW.

“Having larger aircraft flying into CRW provides additional seating options for our passengers,” said Yeager Airport Director and CEO Nick Keller. “We encourage area residents to support the use of these larger jets because supporting existing service is the best way to show the airlines we can support new flights.”

American Airlines will also occasionally be upgrading aircraft at CRW. You can view the type of jet while booking your trip on the airline website.

To book your next Delta flight, or read more about the CRJ-900, visit www.delta.com/. For more information about how Delta is keeping you safe while flying, check out their Travel Update Center on their website.

Delta CareStandardSM:

From the moment you check in to when you reach baggage claim, you'll experience the Delta CareStandardSM, designed to keep all surfaces and high-traffic areas clean and disinfected, give you more space, and offer safer service and personal care at every point in your journey.

Thursday, March 11th, Yeager Airport welcomed 500 passengers. That is the highest daily number that CRW has had since the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic.

###

For more information, please contact:

Chris Williams, Public Affairs Manager

chris.williams@yeagerairport.com

304-590-6164